ABOUT

Christian is the founder and Creative Director of Cirkus, an Auckland-based animation and VFX studio with a string of international awards and a reputation for work that holds up on the big screen. Alongside studio work, he takes on freelance and contract engagements, bringing senior creative and technical leadership to productions that need an experienced hand without the overhead.

His background spans every layer of production, concept, direction, hands-on 3D and compositing, and final delivery, which means he can lead a team, or sit in the seat next to them. He also teaches cinema history at university level and is actively developing original feature and television projects.
